This report was prepared by the Study Group for Hydrogen Potential Study in Asia Region, which was formulated under the Economic Research Institute for ASEAN and East Asia (ERIA). Members of the Study Group discussed and agreed to certain key assumptions and modelling approaches to enable consistent estimation, forecast, and simulation. The key assumptions and modelling approaches used in the report were decided upon by the authors and may differ from those of the specific countries' official stances and perspectives. Therefore, the results presented in this report should not be viewed as the official national plan of the specific countries.
